Remote Care Management:

THE CONVENIENT
WAY TO
BETTER HEALTH

WHAT DO I NEED TO DO?

The good news is: Not much!

Your care giver may provide a wearable device or a tablet, as well as equipment to monitor your health, such as a blood pressure cuff or pulse oximeter.

You may also need to download an app, or software application, to your phone or tablet that will track the measures of your health.

HOW MUCH DOES IT COST?

More good news: Medicare and Medicare Advantage plans cover most of the cost of remote care management, with a modest copay under their designation of "remote patient monitoring."
